

This involves information from the spirometer being fed into the Arduino, and based on the readings from the spirometer, the Arduino will adjust the 4 pressure-gated valves, PG (one inspiratory, one expiratory for each patient) to maintain the optimal spirometer measurements. The diagram on the next page also adds electronic pressure sensors to the first diagram, which can provide feedback about the inspiratory and expiratory pressures supplied to each patient.

